GLADSTONE

England's Grand Old Man Gone to Join the Great Majority.

Was One of the Greatest and Best Men of

THE NINETEETH CENTURY.

Hon. William Ewart Gladstone, ex-Premier of England, died at his home Hawarden. Castle at 5 o'clock on Thursday morning. For two genera-tions Mr. Gladstone has filled a large space in the world's eye, and the whole civilized world mourns with England in her loss. His was proba-ble, the most grandly withtrescine. bly the most grandly picturesque character in the world. The end to this grand old man came as peace-fully as sleep comes to the little child

In November, 1845, Sir Robert Peel resigned, but on the failure of Lord John Russell to form a government, he was recalled and reconstructed, bis pablics, Mr. Gladstone becoming secretary of the colonies. One year after he resigned, being unwilling to remain under obligations to the Duke of Newesstle. At the general election in 1847 he was chosen to represent the university of Oxford and one of his first speeches in parliament was in favor of the bill for the removal of the disabilities of the Jews which he had opposed in 1841. His speech against the foreign policy of Lord Palmerston in the Don Pacifico debates was generally regarded as one of the most admirable places of British eloquence of recent times.

The Boss Fish Liar.

The Boss Fish Liar.

The following from the Stanford correspondent of the Harrodsburg Sayings is probably the most refreshingly original lie that has come down the road for some time:

"Mrs. Annie Yeager tells me of a rare occurrence of a chicken hen hatching little fishes. She says that when Mr. Frank Rout took some fish and large fish eggs to his home three weeks ago to be cooked, his little 3-year-old girl concluded to let her pet hen hatch out a few of the finny tribe, en hatch out a few of the finny tribe When no one observed the child car When no one observed the child car-ried a lump of fish eggs and put them under her favorite hen. Mrs. Yeager says that when she looked under the hen there were several minnows ap-parently flourishing ou dry land."

The people of Graves county may be guilty of all that Governor Bradley charges. We will not call in question the truth of the grave charges the Governor brings against the citizens of that county. But if they are true, let us ask, does that justify Governor Bradley in refusing to give the lawthe majesty of which the Executive is sworn to uphold—an opbooks? To our thinking the Govtermined to sit upon a case of this sort before the Chief Executive of the State has an opportunity to interfere. This action on the part of the Governor smacks of a grand-stand play before the negro voter, spring of action be what it may, the decision of the Chief Executive calls for the severest condemnation. It is positively without excuse. Quite recently the Boer parliament increased the salaries of its members to $8,000 a, year for each individual, as they can very easily afford to do, when one remembers the big tax rolls which the unfranchised uitlanders are compelled to pay. But in actual emoluments the United States senator probably receives a better reward. He gets mileage and numerous minor fees and privileges, which swell his annual income materially over its nominal $1,000.

The monitor, Montrey, the most formadiable fighting vessel on the Pacific coast, has been ordered to Philippines to ro-inforce Admiral Dewey's fleet. This vessel is probably the most formidable monitor in the world and ear, if given a position in the month of Mallila harbor, withstand the onelaught of any vessel Spain has in her fleet. This great fighting machine carries two 12-inch and two 10-inch guns, six 6-pounders, four 4-pounders and two Galling guns. Her personnel is 19 officers and 173 men. She only has coal capacity sufficient to carry about coal enough for a trip of 2.000 miles. So will have to go to Homiculta, about one-third of the way, and after e-coaling proceed on her trip till her coal supply is exhausted, and tips either be towed the last two thousand miles to Manilla or perform the very difficult task of re-coaling at see. THE TARPEDO BOAT WINSLOW.

The Winslow was named after Rear Admiral John A. Winslow, who when in command of the Kearsarge, sank the Alabama. She has a steel hull, a displacement of 142 tons, an indicated horse power of 2,000 and carries three topredot tubes. Her only armament is a few light weight rapid fire guns. It will be remembered that the Winslow is the boat so badly damaged in the engagement in Cardenas harbor. During this engagement Easign Bagtey age done this little boat will soon be repaired and she will be back in the service, ready to pay with large interest for all the damage the Spaniards have done her.

It is very generally believed by those who are near to sources of in-formation that the invasion of Cuba is not many days off. It is known that convoys and transports for the troops have been provided and a surprise way be in store for Captain General Blanco at a very early day.

The battleship Oregon, it is said, has joined Sampson's fleet. This great fighting machine, by the way, would be no small addition to any war fleet.

Not Deserters.

Gov. Badley has ruled that the boys who have left the camps at Lex-ington cannot be treated as deserters. The ruling is that since they are Stat soldiers and have not been muster in they are not amenable to the Uni-ted States regulations; in fact the tod States regulations; in fact the Kentucky troops are not in service. They were ordered to Laxington, with a view to accepting service in the United States army. They are not subject to the discipline of State troops under orders and in actual State service, for which they receive pay, hence cannot be arrested and taken back. It is optional with them whether or not they go with the United States army.

Thomas W. Priest, aged 57, died at his home at Side View, this county, on Saturday last. Tom Priest was a man loved and honored by a wide circle of friends and acquaintance, and many was the tear dropped upor and many was the tear dropped upon the sod, loving hands gently laid upon the breast of this loyal friend, upright, citizen; brave soldier and christian gentleman. When the storm of war broke over this country he went out to fight for what he believed to be the right, joining Captain Bedford's Com-nany in the first Ratallion Kentucky. pany in the first Batallion Kentucky Mounted Riflemen, C. S. A. (Col. Zeke Clay commanding). He was taken prisoner and served a term of imprisprisoner and served a term of impris-omment at Rock Island. In all the years since the war he has seen but few in which he could call himself a well man. While in the service he was vaccinated and blood poisoning set, up and from that day (with the excep-tion of about ten years) till the day of ion of about ten years) till the day o his death he was a sufferer from phys ical ills that rendered life almost a burden. He was twice elected county clerk of this county and filled the coffice with fidelity and rare efficiency. He married Miss Ells Roberts, whose devotion to him in his last long illness did so much to sweeten the bitter cup of suffering held to his lips. Besides the devoted wife a brother, Mr. S. S. Priest, of Side View, survives him. Few men go to their long rest as sincerly mourned by so wide a circle of personal friends as does from Priest. It is probable that the Pincio sees It is probable that the Pindo sees the inception of half the marriages in Rome. It is a curious scolological fact, but the explanation of it is simple. It has been commented upon by numberless writers that Italians are exclusive, though not in the usually accepted sense of the word. They are proverbially open and friendly, especially to strangers, the commercial value of whose visits to their land they appreciate, but this cordiality, even to their own countrymen, has its limit. In no country more than in Italy is a man's home his eastle, and, except in the trymen, has its limit. It is becoming more and more evident that there will be large returns for all good, useful tobacco of the 1898 crop marketed early. After the unwonted activity of the manufacturers, in anticipation of the increase in the Internal Revenue taxes, the summer mouths are likely to be very quiet ones, both with the manufacturers and with the leaf trade. With the coming of fall there should be a revival all along the line. Advantages of the Author Artist Over the Merce Wrises.

The artist author has something that he wishes to tell, and to do this he has at his command two modes of expression, each of which suppliements and supplies the shortconings of the other. Where the limitation blocks the way of words he can imagine out his idea with his pencil. When it falls, words can supply its need, and so be can present his idea before the world at a tremendous advantage.

It seems as if he must be better fitted than any one else for that presentation of what he means. He has lived and moved with his characters. He has eater and drunk, slept and wakened with them, and to him as to no one else they are visible personalities. But let him describe them, however minutely and accurately, and they will not be impressed on the mind of the casual reader as they would be if he saw them in a picture, or, if the reader is imaginative enough to clothe those characters with a body, it is probably not at all what they were really meant to be.

How intensely interesting it would have been if Poe, like Blake, had been able to imagine out some of those strange visions that filled his brain not only in words, but in actual lines as well, or if Cervantes had left us some idea of how Don Quixote and his Spanish aquive real-his brain not only in words, but his brain not only in words, but his actual lines soul, or if Cervantes considered the sound of the constant of the constant their pulntings. That may be true, their pulntings. That may be true, their pulntings. That may be true, and the pulnting of the spherical collection of how to dorn their pages. The Irish monks of the sixth and seventh centuries, the English monks of the inith century and the French of a somewhat later time were the fellows for beautiful leit-fering. The spheridd manuscript which is called by the name of King Knut and which lies in the British misseum contains lettering which is so beautiful in its strange modification of the classical Roman letter that even the spheridd reanissance work of five centuries later scancely equals it. Every one knows the work of five centuries later scancely equals it. Every one knows the "Gothie" character of the twelfth and thriteenth century manuscripts, a character which the modern Geman typographer has preserved for our sins and to punish the eyes of those who would fain study German thoroughly, but few persons know the pre-Gothie churacter, the beautiful lettering founded on the antique forms, which was preserved in the north and in the south, allie in Lombardy, in France, and in Regland, down to a time et least as in the north and in the south, alike in Lombardy, in France, and in England, down to a time at least as late as the year 950. Take any in-itial page of a tenth century manu-script, northern or southern, and see how much more beautiful is the script, northern or southern, ansee how much more beautiful is the writing than are the figures of men and animals which are supposed to adorn it. The ignorance shown in drawing these visible objects is great, and the absence of any power over their forms is really ugly and offensive, but the power of abstract form, of making a letter into a beautiful thing, is, however, so great as to be quite inconceivable to a race of people like ourselves, who have lost the trick of decorative design.—Independent.
